

Saddle Nodes in Wind Fields

Th. Orgis(1), S. Brand(2), U. Schwarz(1), K. Dethloff(2), J. Kurths(1)

(1) Institute of Physics, University of Potsdam, Germany, (2) Alfred-Wegener-Institute for Polar and Marine Research Potsdam, Germany
(orgis@agnld.uni-potsdam.de)

We detect saddle nodes in non-stationary wind fields on an unevenly spaced (geo) grid from climate model calculation. Having found these, their features – size, strength, directions of stable/unstable manifolds – are examined, along with the temporal evolution.

Finally, we want to connect the investigated saddles to known atmospheric patterns.