

Fully implicit global ocean-biogeochemistry model

F. Primeau (1), X. Li (1), E.Y. Kwon (1)

(1) University of California, Irvine

A new solver based on Newton-Krylov methods has been developed for obtaining equilibrium solutions of a global ocean-biogeochemistry model. The advantage of the new solver is that it avoids the need to perform lengthy multi-thousand year spin-up integrations and is thus suitable for performing extensive parameter sensitivity analyses and for optimizing uncertain parameters.