

21st century climate change in climateprediction.net

D. Frame for the climateprediction.net team

University of Oxford, Open University, University of Reading

Estimates of 21st century climate change have traditionally been made either with a single model or with small ensembles of unrelated climate models. Here we present the first ensemble forecast of 21st century climate change using a multi-thousand member perturbed physics ensemble.