

A METOC Web Feature Service for the Mission Planning Environment

D. Romstad and R. Warner

New Age Systems, Inc., San Diego, USA dromstad@nasinc.com Phone: +01 619-2241214

The inclusion of atmospheric and marine information into situational analyses is of critical importance to providing a complete environmental simulation in the war fighter community. Accessibility of the information needs to extend beyond what is provided by static map images so that decision makers can extend their situational modeling and analysis capabilities. This presentation will demonstrate a Web Feature Service for meteorological and oceanographic information. The author will further discuss the advantages the METOC WFS implementation brings to the decision making processes of the enterprise mission planning environment.